

Tammy George

Tammy George is a Clinton, Louisiana native whose passion and mentorship is well-known throughout the Southern United States. She is the mother of one beautiful daughter, L'Asia George. Tammy enjoys attending church, reading, fashion, networking, and spending time with family and friends. She has a medical background and owns her own business, Sparkle In Your Eye.

Having survived breast cancer, this strong and intelligent young lady uses her experience and faith in God to let other survivors know that how they react to the disease is an important part of the survival process. She mentors not only cancer survivors, but also many in the community, from young to old. Tammy is the go-to person when it comes to giving advice that is always rooted in spiritual awareness. Many credit her advice and leadership for helping them to get through hard times in their lives.

Once Tammy realized the power of her gifts, she embarked upon a motivational speaking career. She has spoken at churches, charity events and in several other venues, not only bringing awareness to cancer, but also to the importance of faith as it pertains to healing and growth in life. She is truly grateful to God that she not only overcame life obstacles, but that He has placed her in a position to be able to lead others to Him.

Tammy participates in the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure annually and always puts together a team to honor those who succumbed to breast cancer, as well as to celebrate the lives of survivors. She stresses the importance of eating healthy, exercising and participating in breast self-exams.

Tammy strives to take her message to the world. She is embarking on several new and exciting adventures, including an upcoming book.
